The time for change is now.

Up to 75% of all leather hides are wasted. Along with them, the land, water, and carbon used to make them. This can't go on.

A revolutionary process

ELeather is manufactured in our state-of-the-art facilities in the UK. Diverting leather waste from landfill, we shred and mill it into fine, individual fibres. Pressing them into a leather fibre web, before placing two layers of the web around a high-performance core.

We entangle the fibres with the core using only high-pressure water jets. Finishing with a high-performance coating technology to create a material that meets stringent performance specifications.

Built stronger. Lasts longer.

When performance is key, ELeather delivers. Stronger than other material alternatives and stands up to everyday use. For years to come. Stain, scratch and scuff resistant. Eliminating bagging and sagging. Even in the most demanding environments at peak times.

ELeather comes in a wipe-clean finish that's simple to maintain and its high durability significantly extends the life span of your products.

Luxury for the climate conscious.

An upholstery material that's radically more luxurious than non-leather alternatives and significantly more sustainable than traditional leather. Recycling waste. Reducing carbon emissions. Saving the Earth's scarce resources.

ELeather puts sustainability first in everything we do. From our zero waste to landfill production process. To our 100% renewable electricity sources. Even reusing 95% of all water used in production.

Better is possible.

From a great choice of textures and colours to consistent, blemish-free appearance. ELeather creates high-quality, standout interiors that retain a luxurious finish that lasts.

Trusted by many large global brands from Airports to Hotels, ELeather enhance the consumer experience while providing a high-performance, responsible material.
